KILL BAD BILLS.

The question of killing the bad bills
that have been presented at the present session of the legislature is left entirely to the legislature itself. One look at the men who comprise the Nineteen Fifteen assembly of lawmakers should assure the skeptic that bad bills will meet short and quick death. The Evening Wisconsin calls attention to two bills that really need attention. After urging the legislature to use the pruning knife on measures that are questionable, the Evening Wisconsin says:

"Among the freaks introduced at the present session of the Wisconsin legislature which deserve to be sent to the boneyard is the perverse measure fathered by Senator Bray of Oakkosh which undertakes to regulate the price of political advertising.

"Think of the principle upon which such a proposition is framed—that prices shall be fixed by law, instead of by agreement between buyer and seller. Perhaps Senator Bray may seek to defend his ridiculous and mischievous proposal by citing the fact that a former legislature enacted a law providing for a two-cent passenger rate on the railroads of Wisconsin. It did, and in doing so it ignored the finding of the railroad commission at that time that two and one-half cents, instead of two cents, would be fair compensation to the railroads.
There is no wisdom as well as injustice in forcing railroads to carry passengers for less than a remunerative fare. But the legislature has a louder call to dictate railroad rates than newspaper rates, for railroads cannot come into being without franchises
from the state, and often it happens that they would not be built but for the incentive of land grants. Where they do not secure land grants, they are dependent upon the favor of the state to secure the exercise of power of condemnation to get their right of way.

"A newspaper enjoys no special privilege granted by the state. A publishing company is not a public service corporation. Usually it performs a considerable service for the community in which it exists; but the financial risks attendant upon carrying on each publishing enterprise are borne by the individual or individuals whose money is invested in the stock. Many an excellent newspaper gives space and energy to the promulgation of ideas that remunerate it not at all, but boom the town. The newspaper's living depends to a considerable extent upon its advertising. The cost of newspaper advertising differs widely, for there are no two newspapers exactly alike in the matter of their outlay on in the matter of their income. Neither are there any two alike in the service which they give to advertisers, as that depends partly upon the quality of their circulation.
The legislature is as incompetent to set a price for newspaper advertising as it is to set a price for neckties or for potatoes, or for paintings and statues.

"Senator Bray's bill, if it became a law and were sustained by the courts,
would involve a preposterous invasion of private right. Every citizen of Wisconsin who has anything to sell would be concerned if the principle on which the Bray bill is conceived were admitted to be constitutional. The probability is that if the bill were enacted by the legislature it would be adjudged invalid on appeals to the courts. But wise legislators will not permit it to get that far. It is conspicuously a freak measure, deserving to be killed. That such a stupid wrong-headed measure should have been formally brought forward in the legislature is no credit to the man responsible for its introduction."

NOT ONE CENT FOR TRIBUTE.

There was a brave man once who stood up in the halls of congress and thundered forth the edict: "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." Still we are told that if the United States will guarantee the safe delivery of foodstuffs in Germany for the use of the non-combatants the German emperor will permit American vessels to sail the seas.

None of the belligerents owns the sea. Subject to the right of search, capture and carrying contraband or capture if running a real blockade, vessels of the United States have the right to sail, without let or hindrance from any power. We thank no one for that privilege. We recognize no one's right to say to us, "Pay me for the privilege of sailing a certain portion of the sea." The pirates of the Mediterranean said that once.
The offer conveys no compliment to the intelligence of the American people. In effect, it calls upon us to render invaluable assistance to Germany under duress. Self-respect demands that we refuse to become party to any such contract. We owe no thanks to any belligerent for not torpedoing our merchant vessels. It is not necessary for us to bluster. It is necessary that we refuse to cringe.

Now is the opportunity for Americans to learn thrift. With all Europe at war the world looks to America to supply the needs of the great struggle by feeding the unfortunates at home.

If Texas is to be divided to help the democratic party with its lists of United States senators then why not take Pennsylvania and add a few more republicans.

The belligerents of Europe are sowing mines in the ocean and the farmers of the United States are sowing wheat. What a difference in the harvests.

On second thought Kansas has decided not to penalize the women who use powder and paint and false hair.
Too bad. The bill was so picturesque and so Kansan in type.

Thus far the Panama canal has taken in some $3,000,000 in tolls, and when one considers landslides and so forth this is pretty well considered.

Housewives need not be in any too great a hurry to get their spring cleaning over with for there are lots of cold days coming.

ranged for in New York. How history repeats itself in this city that claims to be so progressive.

immense army just as the German dispatches announced some days ago.

ATLANTIS

A stupendous $75,000 six-reel film adaptation of the world famous novel by Gerhart Hauptmann.

The name and fame of Gerhart Hauptmann are known the world over, alike to men of letters and lovers of the best in the field of literature. The distinguished German author is in the zenith of his literary power, and as the winner of the $40,000 prize in literature holds an enviable position in the forefront of modern authors. It was only after much persuasion that Hauptmann consented to have his story adapted for the film, and he has expressed gratification at the result.

The photo-drama follows closely the absorbing and thrilling novel which bears its name. The scenes are unfolded in sequence according to the plan of the distinguished author, and nothing has been overlooked in the matter of detail. The beholder is carried in vision to many climes, and on his journey to the New World, the leading character is a passenger on a liner which sinks in mid-ocean and amid many exciting scenes of panic and heroic rescue. This episode has been pronounced one of the most remarkable and realistic ever produced in films.

A treat for our patrons. This production has been showing in the city to 25c and 50c admission. Usual price here, 10c.
Attend the matinee to avoid crowds that are bound to be

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE'S STATUE UNVEILED TODAY

London, Feb. 24.—The statue of Florence Nightingale was unveiled here today. It is the first instance in which a statue of a woman aside from royalty has been erected publicly in London. On account of the war there were no ceremonies in connection with the unveiling of the statue of the famous war nurse.
The figure bears a lamp in the right hand. It forms a part of the Crimean memorial group in Waterloo place, the cost of which was provided for by small subscriptions largely from nurses, soldiers and sailors.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE CHANCE.

Every one of us believes that he could amount to something worth while—do something big if he only had the chance! We are convinced that it is not we who are lacking, but the chance to prove ourselves. It is a great thing to have, this chance to prove ourselves. In one of our newspapers I was reading the other day how the man who heads England's great fleet got his chance. He was a young lieutenant then and was in command of one of the several squadrons placed ashore in sham battle, with orders to get their guns to the top of a steep hill. Jellison's squad got there first. It was only a little thing, but—

The Admiral asked who the young lieutenant was and from that day Jellison was given chance for promotion.

How a Little Chance Became a Big Chance. In a magazine article I read recently of how Sidney B. Williamson, head of one of the three great divisions of the Panama Canal, got his chance. Williamson, in 1889, worked under Colonel Goethals as the foreman of a gang of negroes on the Muscote ship canal. The day after he was hired the colonel found Williamson down in a sand pit with the negroes, working away himself. The explanation of this unusual conduct was that the negroes were afraid of a cave-in and hung back, until Williamson threw dignity to the winds and led the way.

A little thing, this incident, but twenty years later Goethals still remembered and when Williamson asked for a job on the canal he got it, and a big one at that. The way in which he filled it is, of course, canal history. This is the way two men "made good."

Plenty of Chances to Go Around. Now no man or woman lacks chances like these that are chances to do their ordinary work in the best possible way. They come every day, in every life. The chance people are always waiting for and missing and complaining about is the chance to do really good work when somebody big is looking and the reason they miss it is simply because they are waiting for it, instead of doing the good things right along, whether anybody is looking or not.

Take advantage of the little chance to do good work that every day offers and you need not be afraid that you won't happen to be doing good work when the big chance of the great man's eye lighting upon you, comes along.

Questions and Answers.

Question: M. O. B. says she is a high school senior. She wants to go to college, but her parents, whose means are limited, want her to spend the money preparing herself for some particular work.

Reply: If M. O. B. has her own way to make, I quite agree with her parents in this particular case. There are many splendid school leading to definite employment, such as kindergarten, corrective gymnastics, decorating, library work, etc.

Question: L. K. C. says she believes in woman's suffrage, but cannot answer the argument of her husband, who says that conditions existing in states where women have the vote show that the privilege should be taken away from them.

Reply: L. K. C. might ask her husband if conditions existing in states where men alone have the vote show that the privilege should be taken away from them.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I wish to have a party on my eighteenth birthday, and what color and kind of dress would you suggest that I should wear?

Reply: I am a young man of eighteen years. One evening when I was out with a crowd of young folks I had a few joking words with one of the crowd and seemed to get almost everyone down. I am a friend of the brother, who is also in the crowd, and we are good friends. Please advise me what to do.

PHILLIS. (2) What is the latest hair dressing? I have medium brown hair a light complexion and blue eyes. I like a style of shoes of the ruffled style. Will tangos be worn this spring and summer?

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"So you like dogs," said Mrs. Billings, beaming on her caller. "So does my husband, and the boys took after him. We have not been without one for twenty years until now."

"Why haven't you one now?" asked the friend. "Well, when I was a girl I sawed off my hair and I felt that no dog could take his place."

"Sawed off?" Was that his name?" laughed the caller.

"Yes, Pete named him that because his legs were so short. He said he looked as if he had been raised under a bureau and so had a chance to grow up. He took it out in growing long."

"A dog and a half long and half a dog high. You know the kind." Mrs. Billings smirked down her white apron and rocked comfortably. "Tell me about him. He must have been a character," said Mrs. Sears, fanning herself.

"The surely was. He was very fond of company and used to invite all the dogs in the neighborhood. We never had less than three here, so three corners of the living room were given over to sleeping quarters for them."

"You surely were long-suffering and slow to wrath to allow them to stay," interrupted the caller. "Oh, it's all in a life time," replied Mrs. Billings with easy good nature. "One day Grace Allen called and when I opened the door the three tumbled over each other to get out and bark at her. Grace looked at

"I surely wish I could have seen him," remarked Mrs. Sears, as she rose to go.

Moisture Absorbed by Granite.

A coat made of granite, while perhaps not the most comfortable article of wearing apparel—although granite in thin sheets is flexible—might be thought to be storm proof; yet granite will absorb a considerable amount of moisture. If a cubic yard of granite that had been completely dried out were immersed in pure water, it would, according to the United States Geological survey, after a short time, take up four gallons of water.

WOMAN PIANIST WEARS HER HAIR PADEREWSKI STYLE

Miss Ethel Leginska.

Miss Ethel Leginska, the eccentric and talented English pianist who is now in the United States, wears her hair Paderewski fashion. Her musical talent resembles Paderewski's too. "A gypsy demon possessed the little woman, who played with the reckless daring which took the breath quite away from the listeners as well as the orchestra," were terms in which one musical critic referred to her rendition of Liszt's Hungarian Fantasy. Miss Leginska is of English birth, twenty-three years of age and has studied with several of the great masters.

Household Hints

FISH FOR LENT.

Remove head, tail and skin. Rub well with salt and lemon juice. Stuff with oyster stuffing and sew securely. Some people bake fish by removing the bone; place fish on platter, lay prepared oysters between the layers of fish, season cracker crumbs with salt and moisten with melted butter. Brush fish with beaten egg, then sprinkle with the crumbs. Set platter in oven over pan of hot water (to keep platter from cracking), bake from forty to sixty minutes—until fish is thoroughly well done. Serve with tomato or Hollandaise sauce poured around fish.

Oyster Dressing for Fish—Take one pint oysters, one cup seasoned and buttered cracker crumbs. Drain and roll each oyster in crumbs. Fill fish with oysters and sprinkle remainder of crumbs over oysters. To Serve Fish—Make incision along backbone of baked fish the entire length; then draw fish away from bone, raise bone to reach the stuffing and serve, a little of fish, stuffing and sauce to each person. The skeleton should be left entire on the platter.

Scalloped Fish—Put fish and dressing into shallow dish in alternate layers, then a layer of sliced onions; cover with buttered crumbs and bake until crumbs are brown.

Fish à la Crème—Take a six-pound fish, 1½ pint cream sauce, and one cup cracker crumbs moistened in one-third cup melted butter. This is one of the most attractive methods of serving any kind of dry white fish. Clean fish and cook it in boiling water that has been salted and into which has been poured a tablespoon of vinegar. Boil until fish separates easily. Drain and, when it is cool, remove skin and bones and pick apart in flakes. Sprinkle generously with salt and pepper. Make a rich white sauce. Put a layer of fish on a platter suitable for serving. Cover with the white sauce, letting fish soak up all it will. Then arrange another layer of fish and sauce. Moisten cracker crumbs in melted butter and spread over top with a fork. Set platter in oven over pan of hot water (to keep platter from cracking) and bake until crumbs are brown. Garnish the sauce may be mixed with the fish, but care should be exercised not to mash the fish or get it too moist.

Breakfast Dish—One and one-half cups of ham; put through the grinder and season well. Add one beaten egg and four tablespoons of grated cheese. Mix and fry like patties; very tasty.

OHIO MAY PAY THE FAMILIES OF DRUNKARDS.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Columbus, O., Feb. 24.—Payment of state compensation to the dependent of drunkards is the plan embodied in a bill introduced during the present session of the Ohio legislature by representative Van S. Deaton, Miami county. Deaton would have the liquor interests foot the bill and the State make the awards under a system similar to the present workmen's compensation act.

This is chief among the many "frank" measures introduced. Others include: Prohibiting display of any red or black flag or any emblem "hostile to the established government"; protection for skunks; and a bill providing that no one, even the owner may drive an automobile without first having passed a state examination.

The perennial anti-cigarette, anti-tying and abolition of capital punishment bills have bobbed up again. The Capital punishment measure embodies a new idea. Its author would have the governor fix the dates for all electrocutions in the theory that no chief executive would take the responsibility for ordering the execution of murderers.

Some of these measures already have met the usual fate of "frank."

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES. Lentil Soup—Get ten cents' worth of meat bones at your butcher's, or a ham bone, cover with water, add a little salt, simmer slowly all day if possible, then add water until you have at least two quarts of stock. Add one pound Egyptian lentils, one pound sliced potatoes, one pound sliced onions and a little pepper; boil slowly about two hours; add pinch of mace.

Spaghetti With Cheese and Tomatoes—One tablespoon butter; fry in this two or three slices onion until of vinegar. Boil until fish separates easily. Drain and, when it is cool, remove skin and bones and pick apart in flakes. Sprinkle generously with salt and pepper. Make a rich white sauce. Put a layer of fish on a platter suitable for serving. Cover with the white sauce, letting fish soak up all it will. Then arrange another layer of fish and sauce. Moisten cracker crumbs in melted butter and spread over top with a fork. Set platter in oven over pan of hot water (to keep platter from cracking) and bake until crumbs are brown. Garnish the sauce may be mixed with the fish, but care should be exercised not to mash the fish or get it too moist.

Animal Jingles FOR LITTLE FOLK

THE ADVENTUROUS ROOSTER. A rollicking young Rooster said to his parents kind, "I'm going out to see the world; I've just made up my mind. I'm thirsting for adventure; I'm sure that there must be a lot of pleasant things to do, and quite a lot to see."

His parents really hated to see him leave them thus. But they remembered their young days, and so they made no fuss. They said, "We'll pack the things you'll need while you're away from home." The Rooster said, "No, thank you, I will only take my comb."

And so he started through the wood, dressed in his suit of red. "I'll take a trip around the world," the gay young Rooster said, "And maybe some day I'll come back; it surely will be fun. To tell these quiet stay-at-homes the things that I have done."

Just then a wily Weasel who was walking through the wood, smiled to himself and said, "Ah, ha! this Rooster will taste good." He smiled a wicked smile as he politely said, "Good-day! I think I'll walk into the woods with you a little way."

Then suddenly that Rooster felt so homesick that he said, "I am not going through the wood; I'm going home instead." "Oh, no, you're not!" the Weasel said. "What gave you that idea? I'm going to bite you where you wear your red necktie," said he.

I cannot say what would have happened if Farmer Jones had not been walking through the woods, armed with a lot of stones. He hit that wily Weasel right on his wicked head. A hundred times, or maybe more, and killed him good and dead.

And then the Rooster ran back home as fast as he could go. And when he got there safe and sound, he gave a joyous crow. His father said, "The traveler has come back home again." "I'll go and kill a fatted worm," remarked his mother then.

And as they feasted and were all as merry as could be. That rollicking young Rooster said, "This is the life for me! I'm cured entirely of my wish to see the world and roam; There's nothing in the world so nice as being safe at home."

LUMBERMEN PLAN BIG ORGANIZATION.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Chicago, Feb. 24.—Plans for the formation of a big organization to include all associations affiliated in any way with the lumber industry were discussed here today at the opening of a two day conference of lumbermen and representatives of the affiliated organizations. The new organization probably will be known as the Forest Products Federation.

The object of the new organization, lumbermen explained, will be to compile statistics concerning fire losses in various kinds of construction, to plan the search for a chemical combination by which woods may be fireproofed and to organize an advertising campaign, calling the attention of the public to the advantages of wood in construction materials.

The meeting today was called at the instance of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

Joy In Service.

A life lived for self can never be good nor great. There is only one way to save a life and that is to lose it in service to others. Every child is entitled to a chance "to do the things" which he is able to do for others. Service of this kind brings home the highest joy as the years come and go. It is true, this "doing" affords in childhood days an outlet for physical energy; but better than that it forms the habit of living for others, which will some day prove to be a fountain of perennial joy to him.

What Thin Folks Should Do To Gain Weight

Physician's Advice For Thin, Underdeveloped Men and Women

Thousands of people suffer from excessive thinness, weak nerves and feeble stomachs, who, having tried advertised flesh-makers, food-fads, physical culture stunts and rub-on creams, resign themselves to life-long skinniness and think nothing will make them fat. Yet their case is not hopeless. A recently discovered regenerative force makes fat grow after years of thinness, and is also unequalled for repairing the waste of sickness or faulty digestion and for strengthening the nerves. This remarkable discovery is called Sargol. Six strength-giving, fat-producing elements of acknowledged merit have been combined in this peerless preparation, which is endorsed by eminent physicians and used by prominent people everywhere. It is absolutely harmless, inexpensive and efficient.

A month's systematic use of Sargol should produce flesh and strength by correcting faults of digestion and by supplying highly concentrated fats to the blood. Increased nourishment is obtained from the food eaten and the additional fats that thin people need are provided. All leading druggists supply Sargol and say there is a large demand for it.

While this new preparation has given splendid results as a nerve-tonic and vitalizer, it should not be used by nervous people unless they wish to gain at least ten pounds of flesh—Advertisement.

THE LADY AND THE PIRATE

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1913, by Emerson Hough

"Mademoiselle," said I, bowing. "I am quite able to foot the bill tonight. I had just sold some hay before I started from home."

"Well, I'm awfully hungry," she admitted; "besides, it's such a la la."

"Yes," said I. And presently, as we reached our table again, I showed her the afternoon papers, which as yet she had not seen. She read through the account of our escapade, her lips compressed, but presently she folded the paper and laid it down without comment.

"At any minute, you see," said I, "I may be apprehended and our little supper brought to an end."

"But you will be so nervous; you can't enjoy your spread."

"Not in the least, Helena. A nervous man has no business in the trade of piracy; but, ah, the fillet of trout, Helena!"

Soon, happening to look up, I saw some one entering the door.

"Jean, if you please," said I, deliberately pulling the coat rack in front of our table, "mademoiselle perhaps feels a slight draft. Would you fetch a screen?"

He turned. "Helena," said I, after a moment, "now our adventure has come."

"What do you mean?" said she. "Why do you do that?" She nodded at the screen. "Why, I say!"

"I have your parole?"

"Yes."

"I am glad it is yes," said I. "You could break it now and escape so easily. One little move on your part and my punishment is at hand."

"Who was it?" she asked, suspecting.

"No one much," said I, "only our esteemed friend Calvin Davidson, whose waistcoat I am now wearing. Some one is with him—I don't know who it is—a very nice looking lady, next to the most beautiful woman in this room, I must say."

"Let me see," said she. And I allowed her to look through the crack in the screen.

"She certainly is very stunning," said I, "is she not—tall, dark, a trifle superb? I wonder—I wonder sometimes, Helena, if Cal Davidson is true to Pol!"

"Nonsense!" was her retort; "but, as you say, here is our adventure, or at least yours. How do you propose to get out of it?"

"I don't know yet," said I. "Just at present I do not wish this canvasback to get cold. We have remaining before us two hours or more, ample time to make any plan which may be needed."

Her eyes still were sparkling. "I'm rather glad I came," said she.

"So am I, and I shall be glad when we are back. But meantime I trust you, Helena, absolutely. I will even tell you more. Davidson's boat, the one which we left him instead of the Belle Helene, is lying in the same ship with ours, rubbing noses with our yacht yonder, as I showed you. Our men have talked with his. They do not yet suspect that we are the vessel which everybody wants to find. I learned there at the wharf that Cal Davidson was downtown at his club. He seems to have departed long enough to find excellent company, as usual. I am glad that he has done so, for in all likelihood he will not return to his own boat before tomorrow morning. And by that time I hope to be far away."

"Does he know who you are—does he know who it was that took the Belle Helene?"

"I think not; but, very stupidly, being so anxious to see the original, I left a photograph of myself on our old boat, the Sea Rover. Item, one cigarette case with my initials. Of course Cal Davidson may guess the simple truth, or he may make a mystery of these things. It seems he prefers to make a mystery, and I am sure that suits me much better."

"But knowing these things—knowing that his boat was lying right at the dock alongside of us—why did you stop?"

"I thought it was you, Helena, who suggested this little adventure at salad—and the coffee. And see, you have not touched your wine."

"Take me back," she said, her voice low. "I hate you. Till the end of the world I'll hate you."

"If I could believe that, Helena, it would matter nothing to me to go a mile farther on any voyage, a foot farther to shield myself or you."

"Take me back," she said to me again. "I want to go to Aunt Lucinda."

CHAPTER XV.
In Which We Burn All Bridges.

WHISPERED as we came to the wharf: "Yonder, one step, and your parole is over. Here it is not. That boat, just astern, is the one in which Cal Davidson chased us all the way from Natchez, in which I chased him all the way from Dubuque. His men do not know we are here, nor does he as yet. Now, what is it that you wish to do?"

She stood silent for some time, tightening her wrap at the throat against the river damp, and made no answer, though her gaze took in the dark hull of the low lying craft made fast below us. When at last:

"One thing," she began, "I will not do."

"What is it?" I asked. We spoke low, but I well knew my men were aware of our coming.

"I shall ask no favor of you." And as she spoke she stepped lightly on the rubbered deck of the Belle Helene.

"Halt! Who goes there?" called the hoarse voice of Jean Lafitte, the faithful, and I knew the joy of the commander feeling that loyalty is his.

"This I, Black Bart," I answered, full and clear. "Cast off, my friends!"

At once the Belle Helene was full of activity.

And now, revealed full in the flood of light as she stood at the side portal, Helena did what I had not planned. Freed of her parole she was—and she had asked no favor of me—so she had right to make attempt to escape, and I gently stepped before her even as Jean cast off and sprang on board and as I heard L'Olonnois' voice imperatively demanding silence of the pounding at the after cabin door. All at once I heard what Helena heard—the rattle of wheels on the stone flagging of the street beyond. And then I saw her fling back her cloak and stand with cupped hands. Her voice was high, clear and unwavering, such voice as a pirate's bride should have—fearless and bold.

"Aho, there! Help, help!" she cried. Some sort of shout came from the street, we knew not from whom. A noise of an opening hatch came from the Sea Rover at our stern, and a man's tumbled head came into view.

"What's goin' on here?" he demanded as quaveringly as quaveringly.

I made no answer, but saw our bows crawl out and away, felt the sob of the screws, the arm of the river also and knew a vast and pleasing content with life.

"L'Olonnois!" I called through the megaphone.

"Aye, aye, sir!" I heard his piping rejoinder.

"Cast loose the stern chaser and fire her at you varlet if he makes a move." I knew our deck cannon was loaded with nothing more deadly than newspapers, but I also knew that valor feeds on action, not that I had given orders to fire on the world in general. So, I confess, I was somewhat surprised soon after the shout of approval which greeted my command to hear the air rent by the astonishing reverberation of our long gun, which rolled like thunder all along the river front, breaking into a thousand echoes in the night.

I heard the patter of feet along the deck and had sight of Jean Lafitte tugging at a halyard. Not content with our defiance of law and order he must needs break out the Jolly Rover with its skull and crossbones. And as

MAKING EXPLOSIVES IS DANGEROUS TASK

Description of English Method of Manufacture of Material Used in Shells Given by Correspondent.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Feb. 24.—How the British make their explosives is described by a writer who was given permission to go through a factory now turning out much of the material used in the British and French shells.

The factory grounds are connected by telephones and tram lines, says the writer, and in addition to the buildings there are a number of embankments. Some of the sheds are highly dangerous. First among these comes the nitrating room, in which a tank of nitric acid is kept in a state of violent agitation by means of compressed air jets, shot up from the bottom. Above the acid, a small stream of nitro-glycerine trickles. Below the vat is a pool of water in which the vat's contents could be drowned were the mixing to go wrong. The acids when mixed with the ten times more powerful than gun powder and likely explode at the slightest shock.

The fumes arising from the tank are closely watched while the contents are cooled by means of chilled brine, forced through a coil of pipes at the bottom. Should the slightest mist of red appear, the attendant must drench the vat with water.

When ready, the crude mixture runs through lead pipes to another room, where it is allowed to settle in vats, and the surface is skimmed. If the compound has not been properly mixed, a greenish appearance on the surface of the tank, and the attendants dash out of the building to save themselves if they can.

The third building is devoted to the washing of the nitro-glycerine to get rid of the excess free acid. Two washings are gone through, the first in water, the second in a solution of air jets, and the second time in water to which a strong solution of soda has been added to neutralize the remaining traces of acid.

Nitro-glycerine is now used for many purposes in the form already reached. But to make dynamite, it is taken to a fourth shed, where finely ground wood pulp and Chilean saltpetre are added. This very explosive mixture is harmless unless fired by strong concussion, generally by a cap of fulminate of mercury, an explosive that goes off at the merest touch.

Dynamite is rarely used in torpedoes, because gun cotton is more convenient. Some forms of it, however, enter into marine mines.

The making of melinite and picric acid and of trinitro-toluol, the terrible explosive used in aerial bombs, is kept from the public, while about the secrecy surrounds the making of cordite, a deadly and jolly mixture. "B" powder. Not even the workmen and the chemists employed in making these explosives know the exact formulae into which they are mixed for service use. It is said that some of the materials turned out in the explosive factories, which employees and chemists think are absolutely safe, are really used for the production of service charges, and used in all. They are asked for simply to mislead possible traitors who would betray government secrets.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea, eruptions of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

Want Ad Sells Rubber Boots for Boy

The other day a Janesville boy discovered that his rubber boots were too small. They were perfectly good as he had worn them but little last year. Did he throw them away or sell them for old rubber?

Not this lad. He knew he could get a better price for them than the rag man would give. He figured that some other boy could wear them and would jump at the chance of buying them if it was known.

He advertised them in the Gazette want columns. Result—That night he had response enough to make a day's business for a shoe store.

Today that boy has some extra spending money and another boy has a pair of rubber boots for which he paid half the price of a new pair.

It costs little to advertise in the want columns. A cent a word with a 25 per cent discount for cash with order.

UNCLE SAM LAGS BEHIND WORLD IN AMMUNITION DEVELOPMENT, DECLARES BATHRICK; DOUBTS VALUE OF ARMOR-PIERCING SHELL

Congressman Bathrick and diagrams used in his speech. (1) Armor-piercing shell strikes short and ricochets a miss. (2) Armor-piercing shell strikes along, blow and glances off armor. (3) Explosive shell strikes water, "blows" in torpedoes along under surface and explodes huge charge near hull, crushing it.

By Norman McAllister.
Washington, Feb. 23.—In trusting to the American navy the future existence of our nation, are we leaning upon a broken reed?
It is Uncle Sam's boast that he is the third, and almost the second, naval power. Has he miscalculated? Representative E. R. Bathrick of Akron, Ohio, who is a democratic member of the naval affairs committee, and who retired from congress on March 4, says that Uncle Sam has lagged behind the world's progress in ammunition development, and that if we were to engage in war today with one of the smaller European powers we might be due for a stunning and sickening surprise.
In his vaudeville speech in the house Bathrick uttered his warning. It was the battle of armor-piercing shell against explosive shell, fought for the first time in the open. And one of Uncle Sam's most unpleasant defense secrets was revealed.
Armor-Piercing Shells Fail.
This was that Uncle Sam's armor-piercing shell, in which he has invested millions of dollars and upon which he would stake his honor in case of war, will not pierce armor at modern battle ranges.
The public for years has heard of the successful tests of our 12-inch armor-piercing shells. They have been shown pictures of armor plates pierced by these shells as a lead pencil pierces cheese. But the public does not realize that these results were not obtained at distances at which the naval engagements of the present European war are being fought. Little does the public know that only on one occasion has the navy tested these shells as fighting range.
And that one test failed.
Bathrick was one of the few spectators. The test was made last year. An antiquated war vessel, with 10-inch armor, was the target. Distance, 12,000 yards. The big guns fired and fired again, but only one shell was able to poke its nose through the armor, and it exploded its charge harmlessly on the outside.

At Indian Head, on the Potomac river, the ordinary tests are made. They are in miniature. Propelling charges are reduced proportionately, and armor pierced at short ranges. From these tests the theorists assume an increased projecting charge of powder to give the shell an assumed muzzle velocity, and on this data our navy experts claim the shell will pierce armor at 19,000 yards. But in actual trial they failed at 12,000 yards, and modern battle are fought at that or a greater distance.
Europe's Experience.
Has Europe clung to the armor-piercing shell? The evidence is the other way. It is known that in recent years European war vessels have been sheathed in 12-inch armor. Why, if the piercing type of shell is powerless against 10-inch armor?
Still more significant are the technical journal accounts of the sinking of the Empress of India by British shells in an experiment conducted just before the war broke last year. This vessel was sheathed in the thickest armor. But British guns sent her to the bottom, firing on a range of 17,000 yards, the shells "blowing holes in her like lock gates."
Our navy knows of no weapons that will do such destruction. But the conclusion reached by Bathrick and others is that Great Britain is employing explosive shell which are in reality hurrying mines.
The armor-piercing shell contains only a small charge of explosive, and it must pierce the sides and reach the vitals of an enemy vessel to be effective. The explosive shell recently tested by the government is designed to carry 150 pounds of high explosive.
Submarine mines contain only about 100 pounds of explosive. Yet if one of these explodes within fifteen feet of a vessel it will cave in its hull. For years our navy has fought off explosive shell on the ground that it is impossible to explode them under water. Armor-piercing shell, owing to their pointed noses, must hit the target squarely. If they touch water first they ricochet half a mile in air and miss.

Explosive Shell's Power.
In January the navy consented to test the explosive shell of an American inventor. Bathrick witnessed this test. The shell, when they hit water, "hit" into it, travelled along for 200 or 300 yards just under the surface, and exploded within fifteen feet of the target. The navy is still hostile to this shell, but Bathrick says it must be adopted, or we run the risk of being humiliated by some supposedly weaker adversary, who can lie outside our range and sink our dreadnaughts with impunity.
"More important still," said Bathrick, "adopt the torpedo shell and you can bring back into our first battle line at least twelve of our twenty-eight supposedly obsolete battleships which have been set aside. This would make us unquestionably the second naval power."
"The ships have been discarded because they cannot carry guns big enough to shoot armor-piercing shells effectively at modern ranges. But they could throw explosive shell effectively up to the limit of vision at sea."

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop eating meat for a while if your bladder is troubling you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach aches, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water acids and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.
Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.
Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

GOVERNMENT TAKES ADDED PRECAUTIONS

All Territory East of the Mississippi and North of Tennessee, Included in Quarantine Zone.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, Feb. 24.—Two orders just signed by the secretary of agriculture make radical changes in the quarantine regulations for the foot and mouth disease. All the territory east of the Mississippi and north of Tennessee is now included in the quarantined area and no shipments of live stock, except for the purpose of immediate slaughter, will be permitted from this area to the south or west. Stock owners, however, in the states of Virginia, West Virginia, Vermont, Maine, and the District of Columbia may ship out their stock upon affidavit that it has been on their farms for a certain length of time and has not been exposed to any risk of contagion.
This step the authorities believe to be necessary for the protection of the south, southwest, and west, which have not as yet been affected by the disease. The recent discovery of a few cases where cattle shipped from areas where the disease had existed, carried it to previously uninfected sections, such as four counties in Kansas, convinced the department that no precautions will make such shipments absolutely safe. The new measure, it is said, should confine the disease to the regions in which it has already made its appearance, and in which the work of eradicating it will be pushed as before. All of the large slaughtering centers are within this area and the shipments for immediate slaughter are expected to be made out of it.
Under the new regulations territory within the area now quarantined, which was formerly free, is designated as restricted territory. In this restricted territory live stock may be moved freely to other points within the same territory, but can not pass beyond the limits of the quarantined area, except for immediate slaughter. The regulations governing the area known respectively as closed, exposed, and modified, remain practically the same as before. From the modified area live stock can be shipped for immediate slaughter to points within the quarantined area and from exposed area as well, after a preliminary inspection and certification by federal authorities. No stock may be shipped out of the closed area for any purpose and can only be shipped into it for immediate slaughter.
Immediate slaughter is now defined as slaughter within 48 hours after the stock arrives at the abattoir. No reshipments from abattoirs are now permitted. These regulations have been made necessary by the fact that in a number of instances cattle ostensibly intended for immediate slaughter at one abattoir have been held there for several days and then reshipped to other yards where they have been allowed to remain until the disease had actually broken out. These regulations are embodied in the order known as bureau of animal industry order No. 234, which defines and classifies the various areas in all the states affected. Another order—

Quickly Relieves Without Distress

The congestion of waste and refuse from the stomach, fermenting in the bowels, generates poisonous gases that occasion distress and 'invariably' serious illness. Health and comfort demand that this congestion be speedily relieved and the foul mass expelled.
The well-found objection most people have to the violence of cathartic and purgative agents is overcome by using the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. A dose at night brings relief next morning, without discomfort or inconvenience. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 402 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

bureau of animal industry order No. 233, requires that on and after February 17, 1915, all live stock, unless intended for immediate slaughter, shall be transported only in railroad cars which have been cleaned and disinfected. This applies to the whole United States.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Vivian Gilbert, a young English actor is making his first American tour playing Alaric in Oliver Morris' production of "Peg O' My Heart," which will be at the Myers Theatre Monday, March 1. He was a member of Sir Charles Wyndham's company at the New Theatre, London, when he decided to come to America. The decision was suddenly arrived at, and his fellow players told him he was crazy, as it would be impossible for an unknown to secure an engagement in America, during what was known, internationally, as the worst theatrical year in the history of the stage.

He arrived in New York on August 13th, and on August 14th he signed a contract with Oliver Morris for the part of Alaric, and began rehearsals the same day. He was only out of work in America a few hours. The only fault Mr. Gilbert has to find with this country is the tendency of unknown letter writers to address him as Miss Vivian Gilbert. For Americans do not seem to understand that the name "Vivian" in England, is bestowed more frequently on a boy than it is on a girl.
Mr. Gilbert was born at Chadwick Manor, Warwick, England, and is a brother of A. Gilbert, R. N., present commander on one of the battleships now patrolling the North Sea.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.
